2019 ANTITRUST SECTION LAW STUDENT FELLOWSHIP

The New York Bar Foundation is pleased to announce the 2019 Antitrust Section Law Student Fellowship, which has been established by the Foundation through gifts from the Antitrust Section of the New York State Bar Association. The Fellowship will be awarded to up to four current first or second year law students to work on antitrust and related matters in the public sector in the State of New York during the summer of 2019.

About Antitrust Law

Antitrust laws prohibit business practices that deprive consumers of the benefits of competition, including conduct that may result in higher prices for products or harm consumers by discouraging innovation or depriving them of greater choices. Antitrust laws can be enforced through criminal or civil investigations and cases. Federal and state antitrust agencies have authority to enforce antitrust laws in the U.S. In addition, there are many other countries with antitrust/competition laws. Antitrust investigations often involve consideration of economic relationships among companies and other participants in an industry and overall market dynamics.

Fellowship Program Goals

Provide law students an opportunity to experience antitrust and government investigations practice during the summer after their first or second year of law school and to increase the representation of lawyers from a diverse range of backgrounds in the practice of antitrust law in New York. The ultimate goal of the Fellowship is to forge relationships among antitrust practitioners throughout the State of New York and foster greater diversity in the antitrust bar. Through the Fellowship, a student will be provided a meaningful and appropriately supervised work experience in the New York Office of New York Attorney General, Antitrust Bureau; the Federal Trade Commission, Northeast Region; or the Department of Justice Antitrust Division, New York Office. In past years, Fellows in our Fellowship Program reflected diversity in many different ways, including having diverse backgrounds, educational and work experience, and unique perspectives and interests in antitrust law and government investigations.

About the Antitrust Section of the New York Bar Association

The Antitrust Law section provides a forum in which attorneys and law students can learn about and keep up with developments in competition law and complex litigation generally. The section covers not only U.S. national developments, but also international activity and New York State antitrust enforcement.

Section activities include (1) monthly meetings of the group's Executive Committee, (2) an annual day-long program and series of evening events, held each January in conjunction with the New York State Bar Association's annual meeting, and (3) special programs in the mid-summer and fall.

The Section also has six standing subcommittees, which focus on (1) diversity in the Section, (2) cartel and criminal practice, (3) class actions, (4) coordinated conduct (5) mergers, and (6) unilateral conduct. The subcommittees similarly hold regular meetings, special programs and brownbag discussions.

Annual Meeting Events:

The Section's annual meeting events consist of topical panels, presented during the day, followed by a reception, dinner and dessert buffet in the evening. The evening events are attended by roughly 350 persons, and the day events by about 100.

For the 2018 annual meeting, the featured dinner speaker was Andrew Finch, Principal Deputy Assistant Attorney General, United States Department of Justice, Antitrust Division.

Other Section Activities:

The Executive Committee's monthly meetings handle regular business, followed by a one-hour speaker's presentation. These monthly programs cover a wide range of subjects, which recently have included the legal and economic implications of institutional investors' ownership of equity interests in competing companies; recent criminal antitrust enforcement actions brought by the Office of the New York Attorney General; the use of statistical screens and other empirical analyses to detect antitrust conspiracy and other forms of market manipulation; legal and economic issues related to patent assertion entities; and other topics. Some of these programs offer CLE credit at no charge. The Section also sponsors a Summer merger program, which most recently addressed antitrust issues associated with high tech mergers, and an annual Taft Lecture, which most recently featured Professors Herbert Hovenkamp and Dennis Carlton, who spoke on the U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision in Ohio v American Express.

The programs are open to Section members and non-members alike.

The Section also sponsors a yearly writing competition open to students at law schools located in New York, and to New York state residents in law schools outside the State. The student whose paper is selected as the winning entry receives a $5000 award.

Additional Information:

There are more than 525 members of the Antitrust Section, and roughly 60 Executive Committee members. The Section's website is located at:

<http://www.nysba.org/anti>

The website is regularly updated to link to materials presented at the Section's programs, and to competition law developments generally.
