Content Requirements

Topic: The Buffalo Human Rights Law Review strives to be one of the preeminent publications in the field of human rights. We particularly value submissions that offer interdisciplinary legal analyses of human rights issues. Articles accepted for publication will identify a compelling thesis, support that thesis with thorough argument and evidence, and offer constructive analysis and research that advances understanding of human rights law.

Length: We encourage submissions of 15- 20 pages, including footnotes. Please use standard typeface and character size and single-space the body of your text.

Citations: Submissions should conform to Bluebook citation conventions, using consecutively-numbered footnotes rather than endnotes.

Abstract: Please include a short abstract with your submission.

Data: Authors are expected to provide any datasets and experimental procedures not included in the text of the paper to the Buffalo Human Rights Law Review for publication at the time of submission.

Submission Requirements: If you believe your article meets these publications standards, please email a Microsoft Word formatted copy of your article to Kmbejger@buffalo.edu. The subject line of the submission email should read: "Student Authored Submission: [Author name]."

General Review Process

We consider each manuscript we receive using an extensive review process. Submissions are held in strictest confidence, and shared only with Buffalo Human Rights Law Review staff and board members. Contact information is used only to reach authors for reasons directly related to specific submissions. Such information is never shared with third-parties, and never used for mass-mail.
